

Sinclair's decision is very unfortunate. If they truly cared about democratic values they would air more than one view. Obviously, they have an agenda and are trying to present one side of things. This is a perfect example of how media consolidation can lead to the proliferation of a single political viewpoint, in this case one which I strongly oppose.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

The FCC needs to step up to the plate and tell Sinclair that this is unacceptable and undemocratic. Thanks for listening.
